

LOVE IS TAKING HOLD

We're all prone to lean on our own understanding
In our pride we keep the hope that we have from our lives
But walls can get too high and the times can get too bad
And we fall so hard the glass that surrounds us is broken
So we learn that life is something we can't do alone
And there in our sorrow God is waiting until we let go

Wherever hearts are breaking love is taking hold
When the foundation's shaking love will take control
Heavy laden in the shadows, on our knees, out in the cold
Wherever we're letting go, love is taking hold

In this world, fallen and needing a Savior
We must know there is help when we finally give in Shattered and trembling we can find strength unending in Him

At the end of trying
When our strength is gone
In the icy shadows
In the bitter cold
At the end of trying
In our weakest moment
In the icy shadow
On our knees
